The Paraguayans Take Four Guns and 2.000 Prisoners.

Proceedings of the Brazilian Chamber of Deputies.

From Our Special Correspondent.

Rio de Janeiro, June 3, 1866. The news of a great battle between the Paraguayans and the Allies has just reached this point, According to the imperfect account received, the Paraguayans, it appears, had intrenched themselves on the isthmus formed by the junction of the Parana and Paraguay River, a little below Humaita, when Gen. Florez, one of the commanders of the allied forces, fell into an ambush and was badly beaten by Gen. Lopez. Florez in this affair lost four guns and 2,000 men in killed and prisoners. He would have been annihilated had not the balance of the allied troops, under Gens. Osorio and Mitre made their appearance and compelied Lopez to fall back. The latter, however, retreated in good order behind his intrenchments, carrying along the guns he had taken and his prisoners, without being molested by the enemy.

The Paragusyans defend themselves with a courage and determination worthy of all praise. The country they occupy is full of rifle-pits, earthworks and cheveaux de frise, t it is not to be supposed that the allies, although vastly superior in number, can ever succeed in conquering or de feating them. Gen. Lopez is decided to fight as long as he has a single soldier under his flag; and as his forces amount to about 10,000 men there is no prospect of an early termination of the war.

The allied fleet is still below Corrientes, without any chance of ascending the river, which is too shallow to allow vessels of heavy draught to go up.

There has been in the Brazilian Chamber of Deputies a stormy debate on the Budget, in which the Ministry was defeated. This defeat, however, will not cause the disso-

PARLIAMENT-GOVERNMENT EXPENDITURES AND RE-CEIPTS-CAUCUS OF THE LOWER CANADA MEM-BERS-THE REPORM PARTY. Special Dispatch to The N. Y. Tribune.

MONTHEAL, Thursday, June 28, 1866. The expenditure of the Canadian Government up to the 20th inst. was $9,433,000, and the estimates of expenditures to the 30th inst. was $2.673,000, of which $1,470,000 was for interest on the public debt and $675,000 for the militia. The removal to Ottawa has cost $176,000. The income has been, for the same period, $11,700,000; estimates for remaining ten days, $731,000. The Bank of Upper Canada has paid back $50,000 municipal loan fund; Upper Canada, $164,000, and Lower Canada, $77,000.

The Lower Canada members hold a caucus to-morrow in regard to local constitutions. There are reports of several Upper-Canada members secoding from the Government on the cial scheme, which gives much dissatisfaction. The Upper Canada members generally are in favor of a local Legislature of one elective house, and a Lieutenant-Governor for executive head. This leans toward Republicanism. The Re-

The opinion in well informed quarters seems to be that the Fenian prisoners will be divided into two classes. foreigners and British subjects; that the former will be tried by court-martial as invaders of Canadian soil, and the latter by civil tribunals for high treason. It is not British subjects are more guilty than the foreigners. point of law, there is no difference, for in both cases the punishment is death, but there is a disposition to regard the British subjects as the more guilty. As time rolls on the heat of popular passion has a tendency to cool, and the e for victims becomes less strong, spite of the desire for expedition, it is doubtful her confederation can be finally decreed before the cut session of the Imperial Parliament closes. In the present session of the Imperial Parliament closes. In the mesh time, a measure containing the provisions of the local constitutions of Upper and Lower Canada is about to be introduced into the Legislature. At first it was thought essential that all the local Legislatures of the several Provinces should be framed on the common model. But now this idea has been disearded, and Upper and Lower Canada are to have local constitutions framed on totally different principles. Lower Canada is to have two Legislatire Chambers, Upper Canada only one; Lower Canada is to have a parliamentary or responsible Government, Upper Canada is to have a Government framed upon the model of those of the several States of the American Union. The Upper House, so called, of the Lower Canada Legislature is to be nominated by the Crown, for life, as a means of protecting the English-speaking minority against the encroschments or tyranny of the French-speaking majority. The Elective Chamber is to contain to a means of protecting the English-speaking illimority against the encrosements or tyranny or the French-speaking majority. The Elective Chamber is to contain 65 members; the single House of Upper Canada, 25 members. This scheme will not be popular in either section; but as it will not be submitted to a vote of the people, there will be no obstacle to its becoming law. The majority in Lower Canada will not relish the traumels of a Crownnominated Chamber, and Upper Canada will like still less than the contraction of the co nominated Chamber, and Upper Canada will like still leas being deprived of a responsible Government, which is impossible with only one Chamber. The whole plan of confederation is being carried out with a high hand. When the present Legislature of Upper Canada was elected, there was no question of Confederation, and the voice of the people had not been allowed to be heard, except in the round-about way through their representatives. In Newfoundland and New-Brunswick it was different; but the Nova-Scotians are to be heard only through a Legislature not elected with any reference to a question of this kind. This playing for high stakes has its dangers; but they will be got over.

What does confederation mean? What is its object?

What does confederation mean? What is its object?

What does confederation when he talked of laying the foundation of a new nationality? He is Governor-General of British North America, and ought not to use such words lightly. Many well-informed persons here think that confederation is intended as a means of setting up those Provinces as an independent nation; that this is the object of leading English statesmen, who look upon Canada as entailing greater expense than all the profit she brings. The Provincials are not prepared for this. They say they are too weak to stand alone, and that, if forced into premature independence, there would be great danger of their being swallowed up by the United States. The entire population, with the exception of a few Irish Catholics, are prepared to fight the Fenians, or any other enemy whom there is a reasonable hope of conquering; but, if the question was one of encountering the whole force of the United States, the hope of success, even with all the assistance England might be able to give, would be so subdued that the contest would be entered on with heavy hearts.

Negriv all the volunteers have been recalled from the Nearly all the volunteers have been recalled from the front, but several of the regulars remain. It is foreseen that the services of the volunteers may be required again for the same work; and in view of this fact, his Excelency the Commander-in-Chief, in a general order, "trusts that the volunteer force, generally, will continue at all times to perfect themselves in drill and discipline, so that they may be able to repel any future aggression that may be attempted." The dispatches relating to the late Fort Eine raid and the skirmish at Limestone Ridge appear in The Giorgiet to-day. Several discrepancies are noticeable in them. Col. Peacook being at Chippewa and Col. Booker with his command at Port Colborne, Peacook selected Stovensylle as the point of function. He sent Booker with his command at Port Colborne, Peacock selected Stevensville as the point of Junction. He sent Capt Akers to Port Colborne with orders for Col. Booker to uses him there between 10 and 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, adding that he intended himself to start at the But as some of the volunteers had not brought the cooked provisions they had been ordered to bring, he afterward telegraphed Booker that he should not be able to leave till 7. The messenger, Capt. Akers, arrived at Port Colborne, at 2 o'clock a. m., on the 2d of June, where he found Col. Denis all impatience to move at since and attack the Femins without waiting to effect the junction arreed upon. It was therefore arranged, subject to the approval of Col. Peacock, that Col. Booker should take a quarter pair of his force by rail and arrive at Fort Eric by 8 o'clock in the morning. Akers and Denis left in the stemper Red for Fort Eric Leaving Col. Booker to wait the reply of Col. Peacock. But he does not appear to bare done so. He says Akers had metric ted him on hein the morning; where he was to have joined Col. Peacock at 9 to 9:30; Col. Peacock says the junction was not to have been effected till between 10 and 11 o clock. There must have been some strange misunderstanding here. The blunder was in Col. Booker's force coming into contact with the Fenians before they had effected a junction with Col. Peacock. But this did not arise from the time of starting, but from incorrect information as to where the Fenians were. No matter when Booker had started, he must have fallen in with the Fenians before he could effect a junction with Peacock at Stevensville, because they were directly in his path. The fault lay with the scouts and with the officers in believing reports and rumors that had not been verified. Booker and Dennis were perhaps precipitate, and Peacock was a little slow; but the popular notion that Booker was a coward is not borne out, and Peacock's slowness of motion was dictated by the necessity of giving the men their hreakfast before they started. On the Sunday morning, at 8 o'clock, a few hours after the 800 Fenians had escaped, Col. Lowry was at Fort Eric with 3,000 men, including artillery, a force that must have completely overwhelmed the Fenians if it had fallen in with them.

THE GERMAN SAENGERFEST.

From Our Special Correspondent

PROVIDENCE, R. L., June 26, 1866. Tuesday, the first day of the festival, was ushered in by a glorious morning, cool, balmy and delicious. The good city of Providence was wide-awake very early, for the singing societies from New York, Philadelphia, Newark, &c., were expected to arrive at 7 or 8 a. m. Notable prepartions had been made to receive the welcome strangers, and to make them feel heartily at home. Many of the houses are hand-somely decorated, and the German and American flags are very generally displayed. Across Westminster st., near Wey-bossett-st., a very elegant triumphant arch has been erected in evergreens, surmounted by a motto of welcome, and ornamented with shields and many sentences of cordial greeting As early as 7 o'clock the streets up which the singers were to pass to the City Hotel, to be there reviewed and addressed by His Excellency, Gov. Burnside, and his Honor the Mayor of Providence, were througed with ladies, and the singers as they passed through the arch, and all along the line of march. were loudly greeted with applause and shouting. It was a most animated scene, and it was hard to tell which was the happiest, the welcomed or the welcoming.

Before the City Hotel they paused in divisions, and were al ernately addressed in speeches full of good wishes, by the lovernor from the balcony of the hotel, and the Mayor from the street, after which they dispersed to their quarters, which comprised all portions of the city and the outskirts.

The New-England Clubs the Quartette Glub of Hartford. Orpheus Club of Boston, and the Frohsina Club of Worcester, arrived in Providence on Monday evening, and were most en thusiastically received. A salute of artillery was fired, and the singers alighted from the trains amid the shouting of the the singers aligned from the trains and the should obtain Club multitude and the noise of the cannon. most delicate and hearty verse of welcome:

"Herein, Saenger selut das Haus.

Und mimmt es sich and webniich aus.
Wird then doch erst der wahre Schmock Verlichen, Sieht man Ench Alle hier einziehen; "Come in, Singers." See the house, and if it appears like an inviting abode, yout will have its true ornament only when you enter it.

The Hall itself is elegantly decorated. It is festioned with evergreens, amid which are scattered busts and medalions of Mendelssohn, Schubert, Schumann, Liszt, Clara Schumann, and many other composers and artists. In a prominent position are found the following inscriptions: "Hoerest du das maechtige Kilozen, Das Lied mit dem eausenden Schwingen, Vom Destachen Lied au rein Tuef dringt es durch Mark und Bein."

Heatest thou the loud and mighty tone Falling vibrant on the walling ear? It pieces the marrow and the bone. Ringing from the German song so clear.

The translations we must credit to The Providence Journal, which has evidenced the warmest interest in all the details of the Saengerfest. Inside the hall of the headquarters the flags. which are exceedingly rich in design and workmanship, and cautiful in their varied colors, indicate the following Societies as being present: Aurory, Teutonia, Saengerbund, Helvetia, Junge Macanerchor, Sing Academic, Avion Erato, Soc Macanerchor, Colonia, Entracht, Beethoven, Maennerchor, Mo zart, Verein, and the Leiderkranz, all of New-York; the Or-phens Society, of Boston; the Arion, Williamsburgh; Germania. phens Society, of Boston; the Arion, windinaburgs (Germania of Westfield, Mass.; the Frohsina, from Wercester; the Au-rora, from Egg Harbor City, and the Entracht, from Spring-field, Mass. The Societies are pretty well represented in num-bers, and will prombly give from 600 to 650 singers, but they are nearly all of them first-class, so that we may expect the performance to be of first-rate merit.

We attended the first rehearsal this aftercoon at the City-Hall. The singers gathered together in strong force, notwithstanding the overwhelming heat of the weather. We never remember a more intensely scorching day, usbered in by so moderately cool an early morning. Perspiration poured from every pore of the skin, whether altting or walking, riding or lying, and coolness was not attainable under any state of circumstances. The half is as well arranged as possible, considering the size and the hight of the celling, which does not probable that many of them will be executed. The diffi-culty will be to pick out some for an example as more guilty than the rest. As there are no leaders among them, the only question appears to be whether those who are though this is the best arrangement that could be made, will only enable the conductor, Mr. Paner, to use one-half of his vocal strength. It was the same at the Academy of Music, New-York, but the voices here tell out much better The rehearsal was as satisfactory as could be expected, the ingers going through their work, fanning with one hand and riping the sweat from their brows with the other. Some of the ensemble pieces, with orchestra, were splendidly sung and were really magnificent in effect, especially that grand old choraic. "A Mighty Fortress is our God" and the large, fine hymns, "Jubilant Creation," by H. Mohr. These were worthy of all praise. The hall is decorated with evergreens, tasteful wreaths encircling the names of all the renowned composers

Nearly every seat in the Hall has been taken, and we found it very difficult to secure one.

The national uprising of the Rahans for the recovery of Venetia has found a ready echo among the Rahan population of New-York. Two meetings have already been held in this city for the purpose of sending men and money to Ray, and thereby assisting the cause of Rahan independence. At the hast private meeting of the Committee, which took place at the Garmanna Assembly Rooms on Tuesday evening. Mr. Autonio Mensel, President of the Ciub—the stanch friend and former partner-of Garibaid—pronounced the following speech, which was received with the greatest applance.

ITALIANS! My brethron in union and freedom! I have been faviled to meet the Committee of Initiation formed by the Railans of New-York, with the object of cooperating with them in the expulsion of the foreigners from the Halian soil, and of contributing in my humble way to the independence and freedom of our mother land. The time has natived when every people has a right not only to freedom but to that kind of government best suited to its traditions, inclinations and race. Such is the principle now agitating Europe—a principle based upon justice—against which no human power can prevail. Since lells Italy has been oppressed by a foreign foe, but in 1850 she rose in her majesty and strength, and expelled it from the greatest portion of her soil. Venetia alone remained within its clutches; but every one knows that Austria has no right to occupy a sacred hand, and to oppress a population every drop of blood of whom is Italian in birth and feelings. That soil would have been free long since had it not been held in subjugation by duplicity and brutal force. What is it for us to do in this critical juncture except to persevere in the protest commenced by Raiy for over an age against that shameful and trutal oppression? Frotest not is words only, but by deeds, by the generous offer of our life, and by a liberal distribution of our fortune. THE DRAMA. BARNUM'S MUSEUM.

The grave of Charlotte Temple is in the churchyard of old Trinity. A flat stone covers it, on which simply her name is carved, without date or epitaph. Trees wave their branches overhead, and birds sing, and the peace that was defied to her troubled life now consecrates her everlast-ing rost. Within a few paces of her dust the restless tide of life surges to and fro along the busiest street of the Western world. But the eternal quiet of that old church-yard remains unbroken; and there, amid the brown and gray and moldering tomb-stones, on which swaying shadows rest and flickering sun-rays fall, "after life's fitful fever" she "sleeps well." Charlotte Temple was a very beautiful woman, whom lave lured into error and whom heartless perfidy abandoned to anguish and death. Her story has been told in a sort of novel. which is full of silliness; yet the story is pathetic, beyond the power of silliness to mar. To most readers, doubtless, the book in question has made the incidents of that story familiar. It has been made the basis of "a moral and dramatie" play. which now holds the stage of the Museum, and which is described as "another finished and elegant moral drama." This piece, we presume, is an old one; but we have now for the first time encountered it, and we have learned that it holds a promment rank among plays that are to be avoided. Senseless and silly, in itself, it is made even more senseless and silly by the manner in which it is acted by Mr. Barnum's theatrical company. It makes Charlotte Temple a type of the most inslid goodyism, and depicts her betrayer as a vapid and vnigar swell." Nothing could be more unnatural and extravagant than the method by which Captain Montraville, as played by Mr. C. W. Clarke, woos Charlotte (played by Mrs. Prier), to elope with him, unless, perchance, it be the manner in which Charlotte entertains his proposals. Such a lover, so ranting and babbling, might well make a woman laugh, if he did not inspire her with immediate and profound aversion. Such writing and acting not only misrepresent an actual personage, whose character is known to have been exceedingly winning. but they misrepresent nature, and therein fail to satisfy the first requisite of stage art. That Charlotte Temple's experience is a suitable topic for dramatic illustration may well be doubted. Few persons really profit by the spectacle of the sin and sorrow of "the erring sister," which, indeed, rather than otherwise, ministers to a base curiosity. But there can be no doubt that, if such an experience is to be presented at all, it ought to be presented well. Yet, in this piece, the characters are insipid, the incidents are strained, and the language is puerile. Such a Captain Montraville would never have tempted anybody to make "the first false step," and such a Charlotte Temple would have died in the odor of sanctity. after a diligent and life-long perusal of the "Proverbial Phiosophy" of Mr. Tupper. The lesser personages introduced are even more tedicus. A comic character, Stormy Petrel, is played by Mr. Hadaway, in such a manner as to cause grave reflections on the possible folly of human nature. There is but one good actor in the company at the Museum, namely, Mr. H. F. Daly; and the influences of the place often make him certain obligations to society, are facts which do not appear to be recognized at Barnum's Museum. We have before adverted to the commonplace character of the plays ordinarily presented here, and to the inefficiency of the company. The policy of "talking down" to the people is always a mistake. A vast educational power resides in the drams, and a corresponding responsibility rests upon those who administer the drama. The spirit of the linen-draper—by which we mean the trades-man's money-getting instinct—is very well, as long as it is confined to linen; but in the arts and in literature it is perfeetly intolerable. It is a manager's duty to have higher aims than merely that of "making money."

OLYMPIC THEATER.

Only two opportunities remain of seeing Mrs. Wood at the Olympic Theater. To-night and to-morrow night she will play Gertrude, in the "Loan of a Lover," and Jenny Leatherlungs, in the musical burletta of "Jenny Lind." It is in the latter piece that she gives her famous and most amusing imitations of Brigneli and other operatic artists. In the former, as we have previously neted, she made her first appearance in America. How much joility Mrs. Wood has ocusioned. In the course of her career upon the American stage. t would be hard to calculate. But if there is extant an individual whom she has never caused to laugh, the anomaly can only have arisen from that individual's never having seco her; and we trust that that exceptional person will go to the Oirmpic. o-night or to-morrow night, and give her a chance. Her far well appearance, to-merrow evening, must needs be exceed-ingly interesting, and the sadiy-jovisl occasion ought to draw together the largest audience that the pleasant walls of the Olympic can contain. Previous to the pieces we have named. that most irresistibly absurd farce, "Cool as a Cneumber will be presented-as it has been each evening of the week thus far with Mr. George Faw-cett Rowe as Plumper. And to see Mr. Fowe as Pinmper is to enjoy a positive Summer laxury. The part is one of those eccentricities which are associated chiefly with recollections of Mr. Churies Matthews. Plumper's coolness is so delicious as to be indescribable... and so to be Rowe's acting in the character. The essential quality-vivacity-with out which Prumper is but a dreary person, is thoroughly spontaneous with Mr. Rowe. He never flags, he never disappoints expectations; but he keeps the appreciative spectator continually amused. This personation, therefore, may properly be recorded among the pleasant memories that Mr. Rowe will leave us. His success on the New York stage has been brilliant and will not be forgotten. Of Mrs. Wood's personations there is no need to speak. She appeals to us at the moment rather as an old friend than as a professional performer. May her friends turn out in force to say Good Bye

THE HEALTH OF THE CITY.

NO NEW CASES OF CHOLERA REPORTED VESTERDAY-A TRIO OF SUDDEN DEATHS.

The health of the city continues remarkably good. Within a day or two, however, some sudden deaths have taken place under peculiar circumstances, all of which, save one. were supposed to be cholera; but upon examination, the San tary Inspectors seem unwilling to announce them as fatal cases of that disease.

Henry Knowlton, residing at No. 330 East Thirty-first-st. was taken suddenly lil on Wednesday afternoon, and died during the night. As the case was not reported to the Board of Health until after the death of the patient, the Inspector could learn little concerning it. THE BOARD OF HEALTH AND THE BUTCHERS-MEETING

OF THE STANDHOLDERS OF WASHINGTON MARKET-THE PERMIT SYSTEM. A meeting of the standholders of Washington and West
Washington Markets was held yestsrday morning at No. 100 Vesey-st. for the purpose of considering the course to be pursued in reference to the order of the Board of Health on the taking out of permits.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. R. G. Cornell, who was appointed to preside. Mr. H. W. Knapp was appointed Secretary pro tem., Mr. Lassie, Chairman of the Association,

CHAIRMAN said: The object for which this meeting was The CHAIRMAN said: The object for which this meeting was called, is to take some action in respect to the verbal notification of the Health Board, for us to take out permits to enable us to still hold our stands. To insure success to us in opposing this order, it is absolutely necessary that we should be united as one man. The only portion of the code of health ordinances published by the Board at all relating to us, is in the thirty-ninth section, which provides that butchers must take out permits. The other ordinances have reference to cleaning and ventilation. The Constitution of the State vests the authority over the markets in the Common Conneil, and that body have vested it in a Controller, and it is to him and him alone we should look for permits. In the Board of Health laws, which have no doubt have been made out by some smart lawyer, it permit will be simply jumping out of the frying-pan into the fire, and he will get well burnt, too. [Laughter.] CHAIMMAN—That is just what the Board have been trying to do ever since it was established. They want the standholders of Washington Market to take out permits, and revoke them immediately on getting you into their power.

Mr. THOUNE—It was suggested that we should employ counsel in this matter. We have done so. This counsei tells us to have nothing to do with the Board of Health, for the permit business was only a ruse to entrap us. I went to Mayor Hoffman and he gave the same advice. It was quite enough for us to he under the city authority. Suppose we took their permits, the city once would be revoked, and then we should be placed in a very bad position indeed. The money in the sinking fund will not be sufficient for us to have this case tried, and it is therefore desirable that money should be raised to test the right of the Board to make such ordinances. My opinion is that they will not be able to enforce it, and Judge Cardozo's remarks strengthen it.

Mr. KNAPT—I would suggest that a committee he appointed for the purpose of selecting a large hall in which we sould hold a proper meeting of all the parties interested, and then come to some substantial determination in regard to this matter.

Messra Knapp, Thorne, and Kaig were appointed a committee to procure a hall and make arrangements for the meeting.

Mr. KNAPT then said: "I move that no person goes for a ing.

Mr. K. App then said: "I move that no person goes for a permit, in the mean time, to the Board. Every law, in my judgment, should be based on common sense, and I have good reason to say these laws of the Health Board are. If we come in contact with the sit authorities it will endanger the loss of our business, and that would never do."

The motion of Mr. Knapp received the unanimous approval of the meating.

f the meeting.

Mr. KRAPP made a motion to the effect that if an attempt hould be made to disturb any of the marketmen before the roposed meeting should be held, that the Association should protect them.

The CHAIRMAN said: This is not at all a matter of association. I have power to disburse the funds of the Association, and I shall see that no person shall be disturbed without employing the necessary counsel to defend them. At the same time I would tell you that I would not feel justified in using the funds of the Association to protect a non-member.

Other gentlemen made remarks, but no further measures of importance were brought forward.

THE LAGER BREE INTERIST IN BROOKLYN.

Several lager heer dealers in Brooklyn have recently obtained injunctions (granted by Judge Cardozo of this etty) retraining the Metropolitan Roard of Excise from interfering this their business on Sunday. At a meeting held in the Miliary Garder, an interchange of views took place between the lealers present, and it was the expressed determinations when the control of the property of the p cluded among the drinks prohibited by the faw; and further-more, that it is not intexicating, as has hereinfore been proven before different courts, and by decisions rendered to that effect by a number of Judges. Counsel was retained, but as he has exceeded his instructions by including all liquors in his appli-cation for an injunction, another meeting is to be held this afternoon to consider the subject. The dealers desire that lager shall be tested upon its own merita, exclusive of Bour-bon, gin, rum or "common" beer.

THE NAVAL PRACTICE SQUADEON.

FORTHESS MONROE, June 25. 1866.—The Navai Academy Fleet, consisting of the guiboats Wineepec and Suco, the sloop-of-war Macedonian, the sailing frigate Savannah, the guiboat Marbiebead, and the yacht America have arrived. The strictest discipline on board these vessels is kept up. There are about 400 cadets divided among the fleet. The Macedonian has been made the flag-ship. Everything is expected to be in readiness in two or three days, when the fleet will start for a cruise.

Two or three weeks will be at sea, giving the oadets an opportunity to practice gunnery and the maneuvering of the vessels. The fleet will then sail for Fortiand, where a short stay will be made. Halifas and other provincial ports will also be visited, and on the return of the fleet, in the latter part of September, the cadets will be given an opportunity for recreation at Newport, R. I. The cadets will then return to Annapolis, Md., to resume their studies.

THE ASKATIC SQUADRON TO BE LARGELY INCREASED.

The new iron "double-ender" gunboat Monocacy is under orders to sail from Washington for the Askatic Squadron as soon as roady for sea, which will probably be in the early part of next week. The Monocacy is the last double-ender constructed for the Government, and was built at Baltimore by Messrs. Denmead & Son of that city. She is 1,030 tuns burden and very swift. She is said to have made 15 knots an hour in unfavorable circumstances on her trial trip. Her main fault is a tendency to roll heavily in a sea way, but that defect will not detract much from her efficiency on the station to which she has been assigned. Her armament will consist of eight broadside guns of heavy calibor, with 100-pound Parrott and one of the new Dahigren pattern smooth-bore guns as pivet guns. Several other vessels will sherily be added to the Asiatic squadron, as the vessels now composing it are far from being sufficient to protect our interests in that quarter. The English naval force in Asiatic waters consists of 38 vesses carrying 446 guns, while France and other European powers also maintain a navai force there which far outnumbers ours. It is said that as fast as the large new fleet of sorew frigates and sloops of war now fitting for service can be placed in readiness, they will be at once assigned to duty in the European and Asiatic Squadrons, as these are the only ones that now require to be strengthened, all the rest of our foreign Squadrons being deemed sufficiently powerful for the duties to be performed on their stations.

The Asiatic Squadron is at present under the command of its policies a clause agreeing that in lieu of the payment of the policy and profits in one sum, an equitable amount, to be determined by the Company, may be paid annually or semi-annually for any specified years an annuity of over $1,300 per annum. This form of annuity will remove the anxiety which may exist in the minds of some policy-holders lest the future provision they have made for their families should be ineffectual or transitory in the dorstion, either through unsafe investments, unwise expenditure, or other uncertainties incidental to contingent trusts. It is not only free from the ordinary dangers of luvestment, but its punctual and full payment is secored by the LARGE AND SOLID CASE RESOURCES and good faith of this institution, which thus, to a certain extent, becomes the GUARDIAN OR TRUSTER of the survivors. Hence the provision may be considered, humanly speaking, beyond any
